ne Eastham Family

Wilbur Norris Sparrow, as an undergraduate at Gallaudet College, about 1875.

More than 35,000 families in the United States share the last name Sparrow, according to a recent postcard I received from a compiler of genealogies. The sender also offered to exchange the names and addresses of all 35,000 for $35. His card ended up in the wastebasket. Long lists turn my mind to cotton batting, especially lists of possible relatives. I would much rather learn more about them as people—what were they like, how did they live, what did they accomplish, etc.

Such information on the more distant ancestors is not easy to come by, unless they were sufficiently famous, or infamous, to attract the attention of historians, biographers or town chroniclers. None of mine seem to have achieved such a degree of public attention, with the possible exception of Jonathan Sparrow. He was the only son of Richard and Pandora (I cherish that name) who moved from Kent, England to Plymouth in 1636 and then to Eastham in 1653. Jonathan was one of the leaders of the new town. He appears in the town records in various capacities, including school master, Captain of the Militia—commissioned to hold "select courts" in Eastham—and a justice of the Associated Court. Also, he was married three times and fathered 10 children, eight of whom lived to maturity, married and had children of their own.

Members of subsequent generations have served as town officers and generally led productive lives but have not matched the public accomplishments of their "founding" father. Among recent generations my grandfather and grandmother, although not in the history books, are of more than passing interest. Both were deaf and dumb, as a result of early childhood bouts with scarlet fever. (Many now use the term mute instead of dumb, but I prefer to stick with the older word which Webster defines as "lacking the power of speech.") Despite their severe handicaps they obtained high school and (in the case of my grandfather) college educations, had seven children and raised them under economic conditions which are almost unbelievable in today's environment. In addition, the seven offspring made up a remarkable group—extraordinarily vital and energetic, above average in intelligence and strikingly attractive.

Most of the descendents of Jonathan remained near the original homestead, in what is now South Orleans (that is, those that did not leave the Cape). Isaac Sparrow was one of those who advocated the split from Eastham in 1793 and was the first town moderator. Maps from 1880 show 12 Sparrow families in Orleans and only two in Eastham. My (Eastham) line of the family was established by Jabez and Asenath (two more lovely names) who moved to Eastham about 1825. One of their nine children, Daniel, married Elvira Hatch and the couple settled in the Nauset area, first in the "Jaques" cottage near Great Rock (now known as Enochs or Doane rock) and then in a house on the small kettle pond off Nauset Road. The older of their two children (my grandfather, Wilbur Norris Sparrow) was born in the Jaques cottage in 1854.

When he was five the older boy recovered from a serious case of scarlet fever but was left stone deaf, limited in speech and with a chronic ear infection which plagued him the rest of his life. His father eked out a living as a fisherman, supplementing that with vegetables from a few acres of sandy farm land. The means for special training were not available in Eastham, and the deaf and dumb boy had no schooling for several years.

The facilities in the U.S for training children with these physical problems were extremely limited at that time. The first school for them was established in Hartford, Connecticut in the very early 1800's by a Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet who had spent several years in Paris learning sign language and studying techniques for teaching the deaf and dumb. The school, The American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, was funded by an act of Congress and tuition, room and board were free.

When my grandfather was nine (1863) a teacher at the Asylum, Dr. Edward Gallaudet (son of Thomas), met him while conducting a search for appropriate students. The town fathers appropriated money for transportation and clothing, and he attended the school until he was 18 and had completed high school—the Gallaudet course—with honors (1872). English was his special strength. The year before graduation he composed a Fourth of July "speech" entitled "An Oration by the Town Pump." The piece is couched in flowing, Elizabethan prose. A brief example—"Drink and make room for that other fellow who seeks my aid to quench the firey fever of last night's potations which he drained from no cup of mine. Welcome most fair rubicund sir! You and I have been great strangers hitherto, nor to confess the truth, will my nose be anxious for a closer intimacy til the fumes of your breath be a little less potent." This was read, I presume, by someone else at the town celebration. The picture of him was taken about this time.

The year after Wilbur Norris went to Hartford, Edward Gallaudet was asked to become Superintendent of a college level school in Washington, D.C.—The Columbia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb (subsequently Gallaudet College). My grandfather had grown close to Dr. and Mrs Gallaudet, and they made it possible for him to enrol at the Institute. He spent the next five years there, on a full scholarship, and graduated in 1877 with a B.S. degree in English Literature.

Sports, especially baseball, must have been important to the students—the author frequently mentions that the student was a number one baseball catcher, pitcher, player, etc. or that he did not participate in the sport. My grandfather "did not participate in games but was very studious and industrious and pious," qualities which I like to think I've inherited (in the case of baseball, surely).

After graduation, Wilbur Norris taught English for two years at the Institute and the associated Kendall School, a primary and secondary school for the deaf and dumb. Kendall school and the National Deaf Mute College together made up the Columbia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. Here he met a remarkable woman who became my grandmother, Sophia Weller. Her condition also resulted from scarlet fever but at the early age of one, before she had started to talk. Consequently she was never able to speak. She came from Mechanictown (now Thurmont) Maryland, to Washington at the age of nine (1866) to attend Kendall School and stayed there until she was 21. One of her teachers was Wilbur Norris. The family records are sketchy but obviously he was attracted to her and courted her because they were married in 1880. Dr. Gallaudet officiated, "for the deaf."

The Cape Codder Summery/July 26, 1983

Two years before this, Wilbur Norris' father had died in a freak boat accident. It occurred off Nauset Beach and when my grandfather and his fisherman father were rowing to shore in a dory. A large wave caused the father to lose an oar, and as he reached for it another heavy wave threw him against the gunnel and he was knocked unconscious. His oil skins trapped air and supported him, face down. My grandfather was dragged from the surf half-conscious by onlookers but they could not reach his father in time.

His mother was left alone on the small farm (the other son had married and moved to Chatham) and, in addition, he continued to be bothered by the chronic inner ear infections. For both reasons the newlyweds decided to move to Eastham and try farming the family acres.

The venture was not a success. My grandfather's health deteriorated and he was not up to the demands of a subsistance level farm. Also, he was an indifferent farmer and spent a great deal of time reading. Frequently, spare cash went for books and this accentuated the family financial problems.

They both loved children and proved to be extremely capable in this department. Over the next 17 years eight children were born. One died in infancy (the fifth child, Annie Darling—the middle name was given because of the unusual beauty of the baby, touching evidence of how they felt about children) but the remaining seven survived to maturity.

The chronic ear infection became more serious and my grandfather was an invalid the last few years of his life. He died in 1898 at the age of 44 of what my father always referred to as a "brain abscess."

The youngest child was only one year old and the oldest 17 when their father died. The mother had no money and could expect little help from relatives or public agencies. For several years her husband had not been able to support his family. The older children assisted with the household tasks and got jobs as soon as they were able, but this income was inadequate to keep a family of eight clothed, fed and housed and the children in school. My grandmother resorted to a variety of cottage-type jobs. She took in washing, put buttonholes in trousers for the H.K. Cummings pants factory in Orleans, provided meals for peddlers, etc. The pay for making buttonholes was 75 cents per dozen pair of pants, and each pair must have had a dozen buttonholes in those days of suspenders and no zippers. One of my uncles remembers that the peddlers paid 25 cents for lunch and most of them made sure they were in the neighborhood at lunch-time because she provided such a good meal. She made dresses for some of the ladies in town and also made all of the clothes for the family.

The most incredible part of the story, to me, is taking in washing. Water had to be heated on the kitchen wood stove. The clothes were washed, rinsed and wrung out by hand, hung out to dry and then ironed. I was told that she made her own soap from animal fats and lye. Just doing the laundry for a family of seven children would have been a major undertaking, but to also do wash for others staggers the imagination. The physical demands on her were enormous, and she was a small woman. She never weighed more than 100 pounds or so and was just over five feet tall.

The courage of American women during the revolutionary, pioneering and westward movement days is well documented. Except for the threat of Indians, the hardships my grandmother faced and overcame must have been as demanding as those encountered by any of the earlier heroines.

For my grandmother it was more than a matter of maintaining the family at a bare, survival level. The children were well-clothed, well-fed, went to church and stayed in school at least as long as was normal at that time. Some of them learned to play musical instruments. As adults they were extremely hard-working, fiercely independent and possessed the quality of absolute integrity.

In 1910 my grandmother tripped on the cellar stairs and took a bad fall. She died shortly after. The fall was the direct cause of her death, but her back-breaking routine for the previous 25 or so years must have been a contributing factor. She was greatly loved, and her tragic death was a shattering experience for the children. I know that 40-50 years later, some of them could not discuss it with dry eyes. I recently found a letter written by her brother in which he advises one of her friends of her death. The last paragraph is worth quoting:

> "There was a quiet sweetness about her demeanor when she was with us last spring that, I sometimes think, should have warned us that she was more than earthly. Linked with the pleasant smile that always illumed her face was a reflex of Paradise in her bright dark eyes whose meaning then we knew not."

As the children grew older they had helped to relieve much of their mother's work load. After her death the responsibility fell on the three middle children—Rosline (24), Daniel (22) and Robert (19). Marion, the oldest, was busy with her own, growing, family and the next, Frank, had married and moved to Vermont. The three responded to the challenge magnificently. Rosalind died only 10 years later but the two others lived on to lead useful and interesting lives (Captain R.S. Sparrow and my father Daniel W. Sparrow). I will deal with all three in subsequent articles.

Perhaps arrived Plymouth in ANNE, April, 1623. Shortly thereafter went to Middleboro, residing there until 1650-ish. Sometime 1645, returned Plymouth, building the presently standing 'RICHARD SPARROW HOUSE" now the Old Plymouth Pottery, Summer Street, Plymouth. It is one of Plymouth's oldest houses. It is operated by Miss. Katherine L. Alden, who teaches pottery there.
After living in Plymouth, a few years, Richard and family moved to Eastham Cape Cod, where Richard died 8 Jan 1660. He is buried in the center of Old Cove Burial Ground, with headstone to Richard, wife Pandora, son Jonathan, etc.

Richard's first residence was near the Old Cove Burial Ground.
In 1665 Pandora sold it to Rev. Thomas Crosby, and she went to live with her son Jonathan, at Pochy, in the South Parish of Eastham. Since 1797 incorp'n of the South Parish as Orleans, the locus is East Orleans, off Brick Hill Road.
Presently, 1966, the Sparrow property, that had been purchased from Gyles Hopkins, a Mayflower Passenger, is marked with a boulder, near the Benjamin Cumming's Sparrow House (built 1870) (house now owned by Edward Y. Neill).
Boulder reads "JS 1660"-attributed to the hand of Jonathan Sparrow, who is said to have chiselled out the inscription.

At death, Richard bequeathed all his lands and goods in Middleboro, and in Eastham, to his son Jonathan, and eldest grandson John, proving that he left no children in Middleboro, altho the Sparrow name is yet there, and seems to claim the same ancestry, as does the Eastham/Orleans branches.
This is in some doubt, however, never having been clearly proved.

His will dated 19 Nov, 1659 made Pandora, his wife, and Jonathan, his son, Executors.
Jonathan was born in England, c-1631. He married 28 Oct 1654, Rebecca Bangs-2 of Eastham, the dau. of Edward Bangs-1, and wife Rebecca----(MAIDEN name unknown). Rebecca (Bangs) Sparrow, died Eastham before 1668.
Jonathan married secondly, Hannah (Prence) Mayo, widow of Nathaniel Mayo-2, (Rev John Mayo-1). Nathaniel died during 1661.
Hannah, was the dau of Gov Thomas Prence-1.

Page 266. Jonathan Sparrow was a Lieutenant, Plymouth Colony Militia, in the Narragansett 'Great Swamp Fight" of Sunday 19 Dec, 1675, one of NE's most savage battles, some 16 miles distant from Wickford, RI, between 465 Mass. Colony foot soldiers and 75 horse-mounted, and the Plymouth Militia of 158 infantry, and a Connecticut regiment of 315 foot soldiers, and some loyal Mohegans and Pequot Indians.. They engaged King PhilipIs Wampanoags, Nipmucks, and Connecticut River Indians, some 2000 tribal warriors, vs 1200 Mass, Plym, and loyal Indian Scouts.

Maj. Jonathan Sparrow died 21 Mar, 1707. His will proved of 10 Mar 1707, was proved 5 April, 1707.

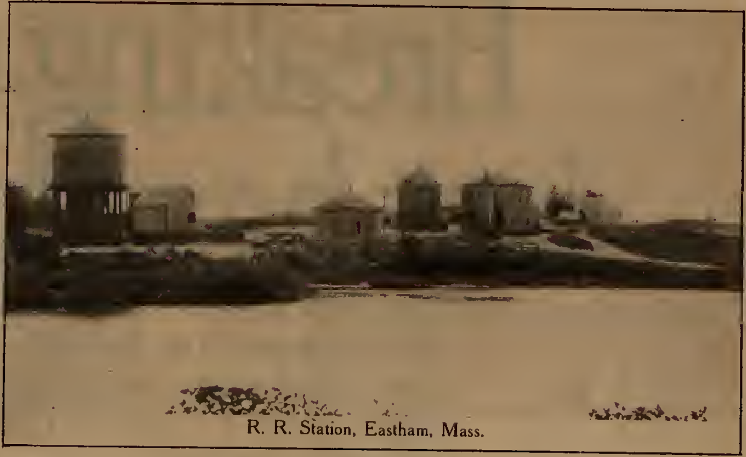
The Hardest Working Man In Eastham



George Clark's store (the two-story structure to the right of the depot and old water tower) which burned to the ground shortly after my father purchased it in 1924.

Tourism and retired people account for a very big percentage of Cape Cod's present dollar income, and a surprise to me, the retiree's contribution is twice that of the tourists—400 versus 200 million in 1982—according to a recent article. Both of these revenue sources are relatively new to Cape Cod, so a frequent question from recent arrivals concerns how Cape Codders made a living before the war. It is not an easy question to answer, especially about those who lived in the early 1900s and struggled through the 1930s depression. They did a lot of things and worked very hard at them in order to survive.

One of the better survivors was my father, Daniel W. Sparrow, who was born in Eastham in 1888 and lived here all his life. His father died when he was 10, and at the age of 12 he was forced to leave school to help his mother support a family of five children varying in age from three to 14. In Eastham at that time, and with his limited education, the only recourse was subsistence level farming on a few acres of exhausted, stony Eastham soil and what amounted to subsistence level fishing, clamming and quahogging.

He set about the task of helping to keep the family together with remarkable energy. He worked the farm, dug clams, poled for eels, shoveled snow for the town in the wintertime, took gunning parties to Nauset marshes and dunes, looked after vacation homes in the off-season, etc. As he grew older, he developed other income sources which I will describe shortly.

Despite his working habits, he still found time for an active social and public life. People who knew him have told me that he was at almost every Outer Cape dance, frequently won the waltz contest, drove the snappiest horse and buggy, dressed in the latest fashion and was highly regarded as an escort by the young girls in town. When the automobile began to replace the horse, he was one of the first in town to get a Model T. Later on he served in a number of town offices and had a term as selectman.

In 1914 Jennie Baxter Smith moved from Hyannisport to take a job as intermediate school teacher in the old Eastham three-room school. She caught the eye of this eligible bachelor, and they were married in 1916. Over the next six years they had four sons. With the added responsibilities, his work schedule became even more frantic.

In 1924, searching for a more stable career, he made a business decision which took an unfortuante turn but ended well. For many years the principal general store in town was owned by George Clark. It was located across the railroad tracks from the Eastham depot.

On old maps the road on that side of the tracks is titled, prophetically, Know Nothing Road. My father purchased the store from Mr Clark, putting every cent he could scrape together into the venture. The day after the purchase agreement was made final and before he had insurance on it, the store was destroyed by fire. He was wiped out and in debt, with a wife and four small children to support. Help came from one of his longtime gunning camp customers, Sidney Winslow, who, along with his brother Herbert, headed up and had a major interest in the United Shore Machinery Co. Mr Winslow asked my father how much he still owed after the fire. On learning that it was $5000 (a small fortune at that time) Mr Winslow wrote him a check for the full amount and said, "Pay me back when you can." It took him about two years to discharge the obligation, doing what he had done before but working even harder at it.

In 1925, Mr Q.A. Shaw came to Eastham to build his golf course, Cedar Bank, and my father was one of the men hired to assist him. My earliest memories of him date to about 1928. By that time, he had been given the fulltime job of caretaker for the 18-hole course with an April to October crew of 6-8 men. In his spare time he still took gunning parites down to the beach in his wooden bodied Ford "beach wagon" and took care of several vacation homes—maintenance in the summer and surveillance in the winter.

Asparagus And Turnips

In addition, he continued to do some farming—a vegetable garden, hens, one or two horses, two cows, a pig, and two cash crops—asparagus and turnips. The four sons helped to care for the asparagus and cut it. This had to be done every day, rain or shine, during the 2 to 2½ month-long spring cutting season. We started as soon as it was daylight and finished in time for breakfast before going to school. My mother, with the help of a hired man, did the bunching. She used to tell of operating the buncher treadle with one foot and rocking a cradle with the other—in the days when she had one or more of us boys in diapers. As I recall, we shipped an average of 10 crates of asparagus a day (24 bunches or about 35 pounds).

Turnips were planted in mid-summer and harvested in November. Again, my three brothers and I worked along with our father—weeding, thinning, hoeing and pulling the turnips. The harvesting task was particularly disagreeable since the turnips were not ready until the first killing frost and were always ice cold. The turnips were pulled with the left hand and the roots were sliced off with a few strokes of a razor sharp, 10-inch knife. The turnip was then tossed in the air, caught by the shaved end and the tops were severed with a single slash of the knife. Our hands were always freezing—brown cotton work gloves were quickly soaked, and after pulling several rows of turnips our fingers were stiff, nerveless sticks. However, none of us lost fingers to frostbite, or to the lethal knife.

My father took care of milking the cows and putting them out to pasture. We drank lots of milk at every meal and poured cream over almost every dessert, but there was some excess for sale. The cream was always in great demand. My mother left the fresh milk in shallow pans overnight and the heavy cream which rose and was skimmed off was so thick it had to be spooned out of a bowl.

Horses and cows were pastured when weather permitted, and we put up our own hay to supplement their diet. Haying was an event which came only once a year, fortunately. In June the cut and dried hay was raked into rows. My father and we boys had to pitchfork it into a hay rick and then from the cart into the hay loft. In order to increase the payload, the smaller boys had to stomp hay—stand in the rick and jump on the hay to compact it. We usually wore nothing but dungarees on this duty but it was always hot and sweaty and we were perpetually coated with itchy dust and hayseeds.

In addition to all of the above activities, my father served as a regional sales representative for Kohler electric generators. In the late 1920s, before electric lines to our section of Eastham had been installed, my father put in a 110 volt, A.C., gas powered, Kohler generator. I can still remember the kerosene lamps we had been using and the thrill of seeing the naked, 25-volt bulb light up when the generator was first turned on. For several years, we were the only ones in the neighborhood to have electricity. There were drawbacks. There was no storage system for the A.C. power and so we could not use lights or any electricity unless the gasoline generator was running. We couldn't use devices such as clocks or refrigerators which required frequent or continuous generator operation. Also, my father insisted on delaying the startup of the generator until absolutely necessary and shutting it down as early as possible. In wintertime, when it got dark early, we strained our eyes to read or do chores in the failing light, all the time pleading with the head of the household to flip the first switch (the generator started automatically, triggered by the first demand). Finally, when it was just about pitch black, he would ceremoniously turn on his reading lamp. Similarly, when he went to bed, the house quickly returned to darkness. If we wanted to read in bed, we had to use flashlights.

Because of his enthusiasm for their product, the Kohler Company asked him to market it on the Cape. This helped to pad out the family income although most of the sales came at the depth of the depression and he probably took his commission in goods and services rather than cash.

Bananas In The Cellar

When things were slow (although it is difficult to imagine how there could be any slow periods), my father drove his truck to New Bedford, picked up a load of green bananas and brought them back to ripen in our basement. When yellow, he sold them to the local grocery stores. At such times, our cellar looked like the hold of a banana boat with seemingly endless bunches of hanging green stalks covered with "hands" pointing up rather than down like any sensible fruit.

He never allowed extra curricular activities to interfere with his regular job, golf course caretaker. Assisted by my mother, he prepared a monthly bill which listed time charges for him and his men, out-of-pocket expenses for supplies, the telephone charges (Mr Shaw chose to use our phone rather than suffer the rude jangling of a phone in his clubhouse) and other miscellaneous charges. These latter included milk, cream, eggs, asparagus and other farm products as well as gasoline and oil which were supplied to the golf course trucks from the pumps installed on our property. I never thought it unusual to have a gas pump in the front yard.

These were nervous times—everything had to balance and the last dozen eggs, quart of milk and gallon of gasoline had to be accounted for. As we grew up, acquired cars and started to use the pumps—account preparation time became especially frantic. If there was any doubt as to which car the gas and oil went into, it was always resolved in Mr Shaw's favor (and we paid).

In the early 1940s Mr Shaw's interest in Cedar Bank began to wane and about that time it was found that my father had a brain tumor. The benign tumor was removed but the operation left him with greatly diminished capacity. He lived for another 15 years but he was not able to work at anything like his former pace. The doctors believed that the tumor had been growing for about a dozen years and accounted for the excruciating headaches he had suffered during that period. (His doctor had been treating him for sinus trouble.) His working habits appear even more incredible in the light of this discovery.

Several years ago when visiting the old Eastham windmill, I introduced myself to the miller, Freeman Hatch. He told me that he had known my father in his younger days and then volunteered, "My God, your father was the hardest working man I ever met!"

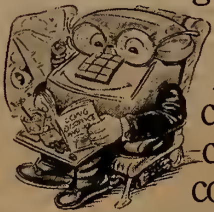
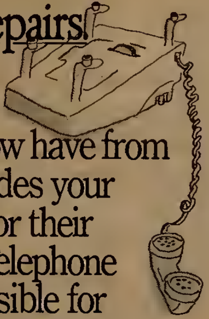
Breaking up isn't hard to do.

The phone system is all broken up. But you shouldn't be. Because all you have to do is remember that now your phone service is divided into three separate components.

1. Local Service. New England Telephone will still provide local service, toll calling within your area code, and access to long distance.



2. Long Distance. You can choose a new long-distance carrier or do nothing and continue with AT&T.



3. Equipment and Repairs. You may buy phones wherever you like. Or lease the phones you now have from AT&T. Whoever provides your phones is responsible for their repair. New England Telephone is responsible for maintaining and repairing phone lines.

New England Telephone customers will find that breaking up isn't hard to do. Because we've made it as easy as 1,2,3.

leverage to force us to do the breakfast dishes and tidy up the house. Only then could we assemble in the front room where my father acted as surrogate Santa and passed out the gifts, one at a time. Each was opened and inspected before the next was presented. Gifts were largely of a practical nature, such as clothing (which we greeted with forced enthusiasm), books and an occasional dollar bill in an envelope. Games such as Parcheesi, Lotto and Monopoly were popular. Every year each of us got one major gift—a sled, skates, scooter, bicycle, etc. One year my big gift was a hand-cranked movie projector. It was equipped with a single reel of film, a Tom Mix cowboy short which lasted about three minutes, depending on how fast you cranked it. The hero, in his huge white Stetson with bulky sheepskin covered chaps, swaggered into a frontier saloon, confronted the black-hatted villain and his evil gang, engaged them in battle and cleared out the bar. It ended with an outside scene, the bad guys tumbling out of the doors and windows, Tom Mix emerging, hopping on his horse and riding into the sunset. If we turned the crank too fast the saloon exploded with flying bodies and the galloping horse bounded away like a jack rabbit. We played it repeatedly, and at varying speeds, for several months but never got another film. Perhaps we preferred to spend our movie money at Wilcox' Orleans Cinema where the action proceeded at a more controlled and lifelike pace.

Donald, Wilbur, Robert and Fenton Sparrow, probably just after Christmas dinner, judging by the rounded stomachs. Wilbur and Robert are sporting new sweaters and caps.

So Fenton is [illegible] brother, not [illegible]

After the presents had been distributed we started on the second major Christmas activity—eating. Dishes filled with delicacies were put out in advance so that we could maintain our strength until dinner. The stop-gap treats included dates stuffed with walnut meats and rolled in powdered sugar, dried figs, mixed nuts still in the shell, ribbon candy, peanut brittle and multi-colored Christmas candy balls.

We just barely survived until mealtime. Dinner was normally served exactly at noon but on this day it was delayed until one o'clock in recognition of the special occasion. The ritual roast turkey, stuffed with sausage dressing, was carved at the table with great ceremony by my father and with the inevitable jokes about the part over the fence last and fights for the drum sticks and wishbone. An almost unreasonable collection of vegetables accompanied the turkey and stuffing—mashed potatoes, turnips, candied yams, squash, creamed onions, carrots, peas, parsnips—and the heaped up plate was lathered with giblet gravy. Homemade cranberry sauce and pickles added the finishing touch.

The traditional warning, "save some room for dessert," was well-advised. Dessert choices included pies—apple, mince, squash, lemon sponge—fruit cake, sponge cake, coffee souffle and steamed pudding with hard sauce. When the ponds were iced over, we made ice cream to complement the cooked desserts. My favorite ice cream flavoring, caramel, was made by melting sugar in a cast iron skillet and heating until it turned a mahogany brown. If the weather didn't cooperate and provide ice, we could always flood pies and cakes with the heavy cream our Jersey cow produced.

After dinner, exercise was imperative and also gave us a chance to try out our presents. We were lucky when Christmas weather provided enough snow or ice to use the sleds and skates. The times when we could use new winter sports equipment were rare enough to stick in my memory. Once an extended cold period with no snow gave us ideal skating conditions. The same year the high school heating plant was down for repairs for three weeks after Christmas. We just about lived on Eastham's Ice House Pond and Cedar Pond in Orleans those two weeks. Another holiday season it was cold with plenty of snow so we had a chance to use our sleds. The best hill within walking distance of our house was adjacent to Salt Pond. Starting at a point near the present Seashore Visitors Center, we could shoot down toward the area where the amphitheater has been built and then, taking a 90 degree right turn, slide out onto the frozen surface of Salt Pond. Under good conditions we could glide to the middle of the pond.

Whatever the weather conditions, we were always ravenous again by suppertime. Supper was not leftover turkey. In our home, Christmas supper always featured cold, roast loin of pork with a crusty, heavily peppered exterior and well done, tender, white, finely textured meat inside. This was supplemented with the vegetables and desserts remaining from dinner.

I grow nostalgic over those earlier Christmas days for two reasons. Wouldn't it be great if it were again a day for children? And (patting my expanding waistline) wouldn't it be great to be able to eat like that again?

Life's Taxing Aspects

By Glenn H. Rowley

LOOKING BACK AND LOOKING AHEAD

As the calendar year comes to an end it is appropriate to reflect upon the last year and pass judgment.

The events of 1983 produced a refreshing change in a number of areas. Inflation continued to cool; interest rates dropped then rose only slightly and while remaining at substantially higher levels than in previous years, at least rates have not reached the exorbitant level of several years ago.

The general decline of interest rates has proved a boon for the real estate market and building industry.

The new considerations include a flat tax which is much like our Massachusetts income tax system where there are few deductions allowed and a low non-progressive, fixed rate of tax.

Another idea under consideration is a consumption tax. This is more complex than a flat tax in that it attempts to tax spending or consumption while favoring savings. The problem is obviously that a certain amount of spending is necessary and certainly required for a healthy economy. Critics, therefore, believe that a consumption tax would still include a number of deductions which are allowed under our present system. This approach, they argue, is not a constructive attempt at reforming and simplifying the tax structure.

In any event, we are entering an election year and there will be much tax banter among rival political parties, special interest factions and, of course, the IRS, who see themselves as the guardian angels of our national treasury. Whatever does result from all these attempts to simplify "the code" will not take effect until 1985.

We should conclude this tax year overview with the reminder that we are still living under a number of "phase-in" changes from previous tax acts. One of the most important is the estate and gift tax deduction (Unified Credit equivalent) which has increased to $325,000 as of January 1, 1984. This means no federal tax is due on gifts or on estates under $325,000.

Next week, we'll review windfalls, an American Dream which you may unwittingly share with the tax collector.

A Cape Cod Christmas

With the approach of Christmas, the gift catalogs piled up on our coffee table. By my rough estimate, if every U.S. household received as many as ours, 2500 square miles of forest would be required to support mills making paper for the annual distribution of these mail order catalogs. Not that the magazines are unwelcome; they make fascinating reading with a spellbinding array of gifts—appliances, personal appurtenances, clothes, tools, knick-knacks, fruit, candies, even his and hers dirigibles (from Nieman-Marcus—just the thing to let the neighbors know that you don't worry about how the next Mercedes will be financed).

One thing bothers me—very few of the catalogs feature toys. I have always thought that Christmas was primarily for children, at least it was when I was growing up in Eastham. At this time of year I yearn for those days when the Christmas shopping (and store decorating) season began after Thanksgiving rather than Labor Day, Santa's elves were concerned only with children's toys and Christmas gifts were ordered from the Monkey Ward and Sears and Sendback fall/winter "bibles."

It was much easier for small children to believe in Santa Claus in those days. Store and street corner Santas were rare, and TV Santas didn't exist so parents weren't faced with questions as to which among the multitudes was the real one. The Santa at the Eastham town hall on Christmas night, when every child in town was given a gift, didn't create problems. My three brothers and I knew that it was really Fred Gill under the cotton batting beard, and that the authentic Santa would come down our chimney much later that night. At a certain age I began to wonder how he managed at our house, because we had no fireplace. I was told he used the front door, believable because the door was never locked and, in fact, we didn't even have a key for the lock. That year snow covered the ground on Christmas night and my father managed to have sled runners and small hoof marks coming up to our door for us to observe when we got up. There were no human footsteps. I never learned how he accomplished the trick but it kept alive my faith for another year.

Our tree, a dense, aromatic cedar, was cut from our own back lot, installed in the seldom used "front room" (parlor) and decorated a week before Christmas. To preserve the Santa illusion, none of the presents was laid out until the night before. The decorations were much the same as today, except that most of the plastics now available hadn't been discovered and so the balls were real glass and the icicles tin foil. Spun glass (called Angel Hair) placed in front of Christmas tree bulbs was popular one year. We spread a thin layer over the tree and then itched and scratched for hours where the fine fibers stuck to our skin. The strings of light bulbs were wired in a series so that when one bulb blew, the whole string went. Much time was spent in replacing each bulb in sequence until the dead one was located. We didn't know anything about Operations Research but quickly learned that if two went at the same time, it was best to replace all the bulbs with known good ones.

Christmas carols hadn't lost their meaning through constant repetition. Carols such as "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Adeste Fideles" sung in school pageants and church programs always brought a lump to my throat. When we were old enough, we were allowed to stay up late to listen to the radio. Every year at midnight Madam Schumann-Heink, an operatic contralto with a haunting, cello-like voice, sang "Silent Night" and then (to me) the even more beautiful German original, "Stille Nacht."

Once-A-Year Leverage

Christmas morning the four of us crept downstairs before dawn to inspect the pile of gifts, but we weren't allowed to open a single present until our parents were up. After breakfast they used their once-a-year

SPOFFORD ANECDOTE

"During a time of great scarcity of corn, probably from the great drought of 1662, John Spofford. then living with his family at Rowley, and being with his neighbors much pinched by the famine, went all the way to Salem to buy corn.

A ship-load of corn had lately arrived there, but the owner, foreseeing greater scarcity and higher prices, refused to open his store and commence dealing it out. Spofford plead the necessity of himself and his neighbors, but his arguments were unheeded, and he had only the prospect of returning without being able to carry bread to his suffering family. After every plea was exhausted to no effect on the heartless merchant, he sternly cursed him to his face! The merchant astonished to hear such language, had him arrested instantly, and arraigned before a magistrate, for profane cursing and swearing. The accused, nothing daunted, informed the magistrate that he had not cursed the merchant profanely but religiously, and producing a Bible, he read Proverbs XI. 26, He that witholdeth corn the people shall curse him, but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it. The authority was deemed decisive, the accused was discharged, and, in accordance with the summary process of those days, the magistrate ordered that the merchant should open his store, and sell him as much corn as he desired at the current price.

This man was afterwards the first settler of Georgetown, in this State, in 1668, and died in 1678," *********

JOHN SPOFFORD'S FARM

In 1666 or 1667, the tract of land called the three thousand acres was laid out (as village land). The line, which to this time had divided the village lands, as they were called, from the lands belonging to the town proper, was drawn very near where the road leading from Haverhill to Salem, through Georgetown, now passes.

1667-8, February 23. The town ordered a small farm to be laid out, in the three thousand acres, (had in exchange for land at the neck), and the rent of said farm, it was agreed, shall be for the use of the ministry; John Pickard, John Pearson, and Ezekiel Northend, were chosen to lay out the farm; and they with the selectmen were instructed to agree with some person to go upon the farm. The committee were instructed to lay out not above three score acres of upland, and thirty acres of meadow, or half of the meadow belonging to the three thousand acres.

March 17. The town voted, That if John Spofford will go on to the farm granted to be laid out in the three thousand acres, that he shall have the benefit of penning the cattle for the term of seven years, he keeping the herd as carefully and as cheap as any others would do.

March 19, 1668-9. John Spofford took a lease of the said farm, in form following, viz.

"Be it known unto all men by these presents, that we, John Pickard, John Pearson, Ezekiel Northend, Thomas Leaver, John Dresser, John Johnson, James Dickinson and Philip Nelson, all of us of the town of Rowley, in the county of Essex, in New England, have to farm letten by order of the towne of Rowley, unto John Spofforth, of the same towne and county, his heirs and assigns, thre score acers of land sittuate in Rowley aforesaide, at the pen where the young cattle of the towne have been herded this last yeare, called by the name of gravelle plaine. Bounded upon the southeast neare to a thick swampe, upon the northeast about twenty rods below an old path, upon the northwest by a great rocke, upon the southwest upon a red oake neare to a runlet of water. And allsoe, thirty acers of meddow, more or less, liinge by the old path that goeth to Andover, called by the name of the halfe moon meddow.

A FAMILY RECORD OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN SPOFFORD, AND ELIZABETH, HIS WIFE, WHO CAME FROM ENGLAND TO AMERICA, AND SETTLED AT ROWLEY, IN 1638.

[By JEREMIAH SPOFFORD, M. M. S., Physician of Groveland, late Bradford, Mass.]

INTRODUCTION.

FROM recent examinations of some of the ancient Records of England, copies of which are extant in this country, it is highly probable that accounts might be found of different branches of the family in that country; and it is to be hoped that some of the descendants may yet find time, money, and inclination, to search the records of the different localities to which the following extracts appear to point, as having interesting connection with the family in times past.[*]

I had never found the name in any English work till my attention was called to several extracts and references, of the highest authority, by a young gentleman of the name and descent, of New York city, to whose researches the family is much indebted. Assisted by these references, I have had the pleasure of finding most of the works referred to, and some others of interest, in this respect, in the library of Harvard University, and at the antiquarian rooms in Boston.

The first mention we have found of the name is as the name of a place or domain, recorded in Doomsday book, which is a record of all the lands of England, as they were parcelled out after the Conquest, by William, Duke of Normandy, in 1066. The entry in the index of the book, is as follows:

"SPOFORD.—M. Mot. Prat. Silva past. Eurdisc, W. R. Borgescire Wap. Will de perci, page 322."

By which we understand that at the designated page will be found a record of the meadows, woods, and pastures, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, in a certain Wappentake (or hundred) now belonging to William, Earl Percy.

At the page referred to, we find four lines of ancient characters and abbreviated Latin, apparently a record of extensive domains, once owned by the family.[†]

[*] This hope has been gratified since its publication in pamphlet form in 1851. Letters from Markham Spofforth, Esq., of Westminster, England, have furnished an interesting genealogy of the family in England, for 200 years; a sketch of which will be given.

[†] A letter from Markham Spofforth, Esq., of Feb. 22, 1853. "I apprehend there would be little difficulty in tracing the pedigree of the line to the time when the family first left the place and gave up the property to the Percy's." Here was a market place in 1224. It was fortified as a castle in 1309. Henry de Percy, first Earl of Northumberland, was slain at Bramham Moor, near this place, in 1407. Another earl was slain and the estate laid waste, in 1462. It was "sorely defaced" in the civil wars of Henry VI and Edward IV, and again in the time of Charles I and Cromwell. It is now a ruin. The hall, which has been a most magnificent room, is 75 feet in length and 36 in breadth, and seems to have been built about the time of Edward III.—Hist. of York.

Mr. Spofforth's letter states that the tradition in England is the same as here, that the name of the place is derived from spaw—a mineral spring or water—and ford—a passage over or through it, and that the name is of old Saxon origin, and derived from the locality. He says the name in England is now spelt and pronounced Spof-

The town of Spofforth, a place of three or four thousand inhabitants, still occupies this locality, as may be seen on the map of Yorkshire; and an extensive castle, one of the most ancient in England, whose ruins cover near an acre of ground, still bears the name of Spofford. The place is a Rectory, in ecclesiastical parlance, and ranks next above a vicarage, and below a deanery. It is now on the estate of Lord Egremont.

In 1265, mention is made of Nicholaus De Spauford, and in 1318, Roger Blase De Spauford obtains a pardon from Edward II, for his participation in the conspiracy of the Earls of Lancaster, Warwick and Arundel, to expel Gaviston, the King's proud and haughty favorite, which they effected by his death.

Thomas Spofford was made Abbot of St. Mary, June 8, 1405. Allen in his history of Yorkshire, says: "The Abbot of St. Mary was little inferior to the Archbishop of the Province, being mitred, and having a seat in Parliament. In 1422 he was elected Bishop of Rochester, but being about the same time appointed by the Pope, Bishop of Hereford, he accepted the latter bishoprick, Nov. 17, 1422.

Brown Willis, in his history of Cathedrals, says:—Thomas Spofford was made Lord Bishop, as above, and adds: "While bishop he bestowed much in building his Episcopal palace, where are yet remaining the initial letters of his name, in the chapel windows. He resigned in 1448, and retired to his native county, York, where he was buried in St. Mary's. See Willis' Hist. Cathedrals, vol. ii, page 518. Also Beatson's Political Index, London, 1806, vol. i, page 194.

In Catewich church is this inscription: Orate pro Anima Domini Thome Spofford, Abatis Monasteri, Beate, Marie, Ebor. Pray for the soul of My Lord Thomas Spofford, Abbot of the beautiful Monastery of St. Mary of York.

John Spofford was many years Vicar of Silkiston. The Journal of the House of Lords for Dec. 24, 1642, after a preamble setting forth the bad characters and want of qualifications of many who had been promoted to ecclesiastical offices by the late king, then dethroned, proceeds as follows: It is this day ordered by the Lords and Commons, that John Spofford, clerk, shall be enabled to serve the church, and receive the profits of the Vicarage of Silkiston, aforesaid, in the West Riding of Yorkshire. And the Archbishop and the Arch Deacon are hereby prohibited to present or grant institution or induction to any other clerk for the Vicarage of Silkiston, till both Houses of Parliament shall take further order concerning the same.—Journal, vol. v. page 516, Harvard College Library.

Of the same person, Calamy says: "Mr. John Spawford or Spofford, was many years Vicar of the church, which, on account of its beautiful structure, was called the minster of the Moors. He was a pious man of competent abilities, very plain in his preaching, holy in his life, facetious in discourse, and a lover of all good men. He was ejected for nonconformity about 1663. After he was ejected, Mr. Robert Cotton, a worthy, pious gentleman of the parish, took him to his house, and kept him as long as he lived. He died in 1668, aged 80."—See Calamy Nonconformist Memorial, vol. ii, page 575.

forth. He also says, "I sent your Record to Mr. Burke, the celebrated Herald, who has given a notice of it in his third volume of the Visitation of England. The identity of John Spofford with our family, is fully recognized. Mr. Burke is Ulster King of Arms, and his recognition of the connection is sufficient to give it authenticity.

Spofforth Castle is mentioned as one of the oldest buildings in England. Archæology, vol. vi, page 337.

We have no means of proving beyond a doubt, our descent from these personages; but nothing is more probable than that the John who came over with a company of Dissenters, and settled at Rowley in 1638, was son to him of the same name and faith, who was made Vicar of Silkiston four years after. The names, Thomas and John, it seems were constantly in the family, on both sides of the water. If this conjecture is true, the son leaves England during the civil wars which preceded the dethronement of Charles I, and the father had better fortune under the Parliament and Cromwell, but was turned out of his living after the restoration under Charles II, when being near 75 years of age, he was too old to follow his son to America. The writer would be very much obliged to any one who will furnish a correct record of our descent from any person in England, whether it proves or disproves the correctness of these conjectures.

History informs us that Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, with about 20 families from Yorkshire, Eng., where he had been a laborious minister for 20 years, came over and settled down between Newbury and Ipswich, his grant extending from the seashore to Cochichawick, now Andover, (see Winthrop's Journal, vol. ii, page 17,) and afterwards enlarged in 1640, so as to include the "neck on the Merrimack," because that being then about 60 families, and having only what is now the towns of Rowley, Georgetown, and Boxford, they were "straightened for land," the General Court granted an addition of what is now the towns of Bradford and Groveland. We have no record of the names of this company, except what is collected from the records of division of land, births, deaths, marriages, and those who held offices among them. This is probably owing to the burning of Mr. Rogers' house, who could hardly have failed to record the names of the pioneers in this important enterprize. The name of John Spofford first appeared on the record of the first division of land as homestead lots in 1643. He had a house lot of one and a half acres, on Bradford street, so called, near the centre of what is still the town of Rowley. Lots were also assigned him in the fresh meadows, the salt meadows, the tillage lands, the Merrimack lands, and shares in the ox pasture, the cow pasture, and the calf pasture.

Whether married at the time of coming over, or to whom, except that his wife's name was Elizabeth, we do not know. The birth of a daughter, Elizabeth, is recorded Dec. 15, 1646. He lived in what is still Rowley, about 30 years, and in the spring of 1669 removed to the west part of the town, now and for a hundred years past well known as Spofford's Hill, and was, beyond all reasonable doubt, the first settler in Georgetown, and the progenitor of all of the name in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and Canada.

The town of Rowley in 1668 laid out a farm, at the "Gravelle Plain, near the Bald Hills," then a wilderness, now the westerly part of Georgetown. This farm John Spofford took on a lease for twenty-one years, and removed here in the spring of 1669. This was a removal of four or five miles into an almost unbroken wilderness. Tradition says that the name of Bald Pate was given to what in the record of this farm is called the bald hills, on account of the trees having been cut down to clear the land for pasturage, a use to which much of it has been devoted to the present day; by this name being used in the lease, it is quite sure that it had been so cleared prior to the lease. The family had been living here twenty-three years, when Mr. Goodridge, his wife and two children were killed by the Indians, in Byfield, but three miles from them, and almost directly between them and their townsmen in Rowley. They had been here thirty-nine years when Haverhill was destroyed, and Rev. Mr. Rolfe, Capt. Wainwright, and forty others slain. How many anxious days and gloomy nights must they have passed during these times of Indian war; but we have no record or tradition that they ever left the place. The old hearth-stone was always warm, and three generations lived and died on the same spot, where a monument ought to be erected to the memory of these patriarchs. For the first five years he was to pay as rent 300 feet of white oak plank; and after that time ten pounds each year—one half of said rent in English corn at price current, or Indian corn if he pleases—the other half in "fat cattel or leane," at price current. This lease was assigned over to his sons, John and Samuel, March 16th, 1676, and the rent reduced to eight pounds, and to be wholly remitted "during the time of the Indian wars," and it was extended by agreement three score years from the date thereof. John, Jr. was twenty years old at the date of this lease, and he and his son John lived, raised families, and died on this farm before its expiration. Samuel, then twenty-four years old, survived the lease nearly seventy-years

Why he (John, senior) went on this farm upon a lease, when land was so plenty, and after having half a dozen lots assigned to him in the division, does not appear. Perhaps the "benefit of penning the cattel" was a valuable privilege. He might have been reduced in property by sickness or other ways, but his descendants at the expiration of the lease were owners of nearly one thousand acres adjoining, none of which, however, appear to be of the land originally assigned to the family.

At the expiration of this lease the farm reverted to the town, and the northerly part of it was soon after set off to the second parish, and was sold or leased for 999 years. The other part has been let on seven years' leases, till 1851, during which year it was sold by the first parish, and purchased by Mr. Sewell Spofford.

The name appears to have varied much in its spelling, both in England and in America. The English authorities are copied as printed. In the body of the before-named lease, the name is twice written Spofforth—it is signed Spofford—the renewed lease in 1676, is signed John and Samuel Spofforth. On the gravestone of this same John in 1697, in the old ground at Bradford, it is spelled Spafford, and on the gravestone of Samuel, in the old ground at Georgetown, it is Spaffard.

The name on the old spot was usually spelt with an a, sixty or seventy years ago, and those who left there prior to the revolution have generally conformed to that orthography, but Spofford is now nearly uniform in Massachusetts, and this it appears conforms to the best authority in England. It will be my plan to spell every name and family as they spell it themselves—but in past generations the name of the same person is often spelt differently. The pronunciation in this region, the first location of the name in America, has always been nearly the same, the a, when used, having been sounded broad, like a in hall, ball, &c.

Some confusion will arise to those unacquainted with the localities, from the number of towns into which Rowley has been divided. That part of the town in which the family first settled, is Rowley still, but no one of the name has resided there, to our knowledge, since the first settler left there with his family in 1669. New Rowley, as it was called for many years, being the second parish in Rowley, now Georgetown, has been the prolific hive which, for one hundred and eighty years, has sent forth many sons and daughters to people distant towns and states.

Bradford was set off from Rowley in 1675, Boxford in 1685, Georgetown in 1838, and Groveland from Bradford in 1850. There were in Georgetown, in 1810, twelve families and twenty voters of the name, and there are about the same number of families there at present. There are also a few families in Boxford and Groveland, but much the largest number of the descendants are now scattered in distant towns and places.

Five generations, including the first couple, are now numbered with the dead. Mrs. Hale of Groveland, (No. 81,) and Mrs. Perley of Haverhill, (No. 84,) who lately deceased, were the last of that generation. The sixth generation is now fast leaving the stage. Few if any of them can be found under fifty years of age, and the families in distant places are many of them a generation in advance of us, probably from the circumstance that those who emigrated were generally the elder members of the family.

Most of the name have been farmers; many ingenious mechanics. We number 7 physicians, 3 clergymen, 2 lawyers, 3 booksellers, and several merchants and ship-owners. Many whose births are recorded of early generations do not appear again on any record, and may have died young, or have families in distant places. Though few have been high in office, yet a very large part have been respectable in life, many have been magistrates and legislators.

The record will be arranged in generations. Every person, when first mentioned at birth, will be numbered; that number will be placed against the name whenever it appears again as the head of a family. At the head of each generation will be placed the generation of both parents and children under that head.

In a few instances the same number will be used twice in a family, to avoid a derangement of all the succeeding numbers by the insertion of some newly discovered member.

Many omissions and some errors will be noticed. Ancient records and gravestones disagree in some cases—many letters of inquiry have remained unanswered—others have few names or dates. The writer has undertaken the task, because no one has done it before him, and because his memory extending back half a century, to many of the fourth generation, now all gone, he supposed he could arrange the marriages and family connections better than those of a later generation.

To the name and family descended from John and Elizabeth, this record is respectfully dedicated. May it excite the present and coming generations to emulate the virtues of their ancestors.*

The first barrel of tar made in this country was produced in New England, by Capt. Coram, in 1698. Before that they had used Swedish tar; after which it was generally made all over the colonies. It seems Coram being much provoked at the extortionate price of Swedish tar, and observing the process by which it was made, undertook to make an experiment when he arrived at home, and it abundantly succeeded.—Emerald, Boston, Aug. 13, 1808.

[Thomas Coram, founder of the Foundling Hospital in London, resided at Taunton, in Massachusetts Bay, about 1700.—See Hutchinson, ii. 224; Watkins, Biog. Dict., Art. Coram; Lempriere; also Bailey's New Plymouth.]

A priest - Rector of Barton in Ryedale (now Barton le Street) near Helmsley in Yorkshire. Married (contrary to edicts of the Catholic Church as did Cranmer, Archbishop of Canterbury, and others at that period) - on refusing to put away his wife, he was deprived, in Queen Mary's reign, 1554, of his benefice. From this date the family became Protestants and appear to have declined in property and influence for many generations.

The Journal of the House of Lords for Dec. 24, 1642, (after a preamble setting forth the bad character and want of qualification of many who had been promoted to ecclesiastical offices by the late King, Charles I, just dethroned) proceeds as follows: -

And the Archbishop and the Archdeacon are hereby prohibited to present or grant institution or induction to any other clerk for the vicarage of Silkeston till both Houses of Parliament shall take further action concerning the same." Dear Miriam Eddy,

Thanks so much for your card. I had a great time visiting with you even if I didn't do all the "hunting" I might have done otherwise!

I have two Pratt lines (or they would be if they had had a chance to get going!) The first is; Joshua^1 Hannah→ whose daughter ~~Mary~~^{2} married William^1 Spooner of Plymouth. The second line is Richard^1 of Malden (see Corey's History of Malden, Mass.) whose dau. Mary^2 married Thomas Skinner, and whose son Thomas^2 married Alice ----. Both of the second generations moved to Colchester, Conn.

I would like to take up your offer to put our name on the PENNY SAVER mailing list. The P.O. here in Sandwich says the P.S. comes to them pre-addressed with specific names.

Sincerely,

Ruth V. Sisson

In the articles of indenture he is said to be "of Colchester, in the County of Essex." It is believed to be the "Colchester" of Co. Essex, Mass. Colony - the town afterward & now kn. as Salisbury. There was a settlement there as early as 1637 & prob 1636 & kn as Colchester there can be no doubt.

Eliza - m. Nathaniel Barney
Sarah -
Mary - m. William Swain

Wm. Hadwen & Nathaniel Barney were partners in the sperm-candle business & were very rich. They traded with the Starbuck boys who were masters of ships. They lived in pillared mansions on Main St., Nantucket, one with a Roman feeling, & the other, Grecian.
Mary & William Swain lived(next door to Eliza & Nathaniel Barney) in the house with the beautiful doorway - No. 92, Main St.

He had 3 sons: George (eldest son) had house farthest west - called "West Brick"
Matthew (middle son) had center house, called "Middle Brick"
William (youngest son) lived in "East Brick"

The Starbucks lived across the street from their sisters, in the 3 identical beautiful brick houses their father built for them in 1837, but the complete titles were not given to the boys until 1850, when they were safely married & settled down.

When Joseph ordered the 3 identical mansions for his sons, he specified that they were to be bigger & better than those of Henry Coffin at No. 75 & Charles G. Coffin at No. 78 across the street. Their sister was married to Thomas Macy, & Zenas Coffin, their father, had built her the house at No. 99, Main St.

The Rays & Russells coopers are;
The knowing Folgers lazy;
A learned Coleman very rare,
And scarce an honest Hussy.

The Coffins noisy, boisterous, loud;
The silent Gardners plodding;
The Mitchells good; the Barkers proud;
The Macys eat the pudding.

The Swains are clannish, clownish, cold;
The Barnards very civil;
The Starbucks they are loud to bawl;
The Pinkhams beat the devil.

In autumn of 1659 (either Sept. or Oct.)
Thomas Macy, with wife Sarah and 5 children, arrived at Nantucket, at west end of Island accompanied by Edward Starbuck, a widower, and Isaac Coleman, an orphan, then a young boy. (of 12)
(+ ? James Coffin, a youth of 19

Early in spring of 1660, Edward Starbuck ret'd. to Salisbury, to report conditions to the other proprietors and within a few months some 8 or 10 families arrived at the Island and by the summer of that year the island was fairly settled by the White race.

Tristram^1 Coffin's house "NORTHAM" was at Capaum.

Thomas Macy's lot was laid out near the WANNACOMET Pond.

Edw.^{1} Starbuck built near the HUMMOCK Pond

Nathaniel^2 Starbuck & wife Mary^2 Coffin, (dau. of TRISTRAM, & known as "the Great Woman", lived in the same vicinity nr. the "CAMBRIDGE SPRING."

Richard Gardner located nr. or on what is now the HAMBLIN Farm at the cliff.

John Gardner's house was at or nr. Sunset Hill.

John Swain must have located very early in the settlement at POLPIS. His house built about 1672 was still standing until within a few years. (Written 1915)

Each house lot contained 60 rods square to a whole share (22½ acres).

Some Nantucket Vital Records, etc.

In 1662 occurred the 1st death among the settlers on Nantucket – that of Jean, wife of Richard Swain.

The 1st white child born was Mary^3 Starbuck, b. 30 Mar. 1663, dau. of Nathaniel^2 and Mary^2 (Coffin) Starbuck. Mary Coffin Starbuck had just passed her 18th birthday when the younger Mary came into the world.

The earliest marriage was that of William Worth and Sarah Macy, eldest dau. of Thomas Macy, which occurred on April 11, 1665, the bride being then a spinster of nearly nineteen.

In 1672 Captain John Gardner, brother of Richard, who had been a member since 1665, was invited to come to the island & "set up the trade for the taking of codfish." He was granted half a share on his agreement to stay for a period of 3 years. He remained until his death in 1706.

Eleazur^2 Folger m. Sarah^2 Gardner, dau. of Richard^1.

Tristram^1 Coffin, Sr. died in October 1681.

In 1686 Tristram's grandson Jethro^3 m. Mary^2 Gardner, dau. of John^1 Gardner, and the now famous "oldest house" was built for them on Sunset Hill on land donated by the bride's father, the lumber having been sawed at the mill in New Hampshire of Peter^2 Coffin, father of the groom.

It was a most fortunate circumstance for the cause of Quakerism that its advocates made an early convert of Mary (Coffin) Starbuck, 'the Great Woman', then in the middle fifties, the mother of 10 children and at the height of her power & influence in the little island community. She was a truly remarkable woman loved, respected & looked up to by all, for her strength of character, breadth of mind, & noble qualities of heart & soul & the influence she exerted over the lives and actions of her fellow townsmen & women has hardly a parallel in our colonial history.

Once convinced of its truth, she embraced the new faith with characteristic ardor & enthusiasm & soon became herself one of its most celebrated advocates and preachers making many converts. For several years meetings were held in the great fore-room of her home known as 'Parliament House', situated on what is now known as Island-View Farm, between the Maxey's and the North Head of the Hummock ponds. This house was later removed to the present site of the town, & the house, now standing on the northerly corner of Pine & School Streets is said to be the original 'Parliament House'.

The Founders of Nantucket are buried at CAPAUM, nr. the sea, where a tablet has been erected in their memory. There were slabs once to mark their graves, but only John Gardner's survived. There are 2 old burying grounds in Nantucket — the Old North & the Old South. Old South — enclosed by a White picket fence is tidier but not so nice. Then there is the Quaker cemetery — they never had headstones or even markers so there is nothing to see except a few later day stones.

STICKNEY

NOTES FROM ENGLISH ORIGINS

(From N.E.H.G. Register - October 1985)

"Elizabeth, Wife of William Stickney of Rowley, Mass."

(Contributed by Elaine C. Nichols, Salt Lake City, Utah)

In his will dated 21 Jan. 1664 William Stickney of Rowley, Essex Co., Mass. mentioned his wife Elizabeth, sons Samuel, Amos, John, Andrew, and Thomas, and daughters Mary, Faith, and Mercy. The Vital Records of Rowley, Massachusetts to the End of the Year 1849 (Salem, Mass. 1928) give the births and deaths of the following children of William and Elizabeth:

John, b. 14: 1m: 1640.
Faith, b. 4: 12m: 1641.
Andrew, b. 11: 3m: 1644.
Thomas (twin) b. 3: 1m: 1646.
Elizabeth (twin) b. 3: 1m: 1646; bur. 4 Dec. 1659.
Mercy (twin), b. 14: 11m: 1648; bur. 14 Jan. 1676.
Adding (twin), b. 14: 11m: 1648; bur. 17 Sept. 1660.

These records indicate that William and Elizabeth brought with them from England the three older children, Samuel, Amos, and Mary, before they were admitted to the First Church of Boston 6: 11m: 1638 and later dismissed to the church at Rowley, 24: 9m: 1639. (Richard D. Pierce, ed., "The Records of the First Church in Boston, Colonial Society of Massachusetts Collections - Boston, 1961 - 1: 23, 25.)

Matthew Adams Stickney, "The Stickney Family: A Genealogical Memoir (Salem, Mass.,1869) p. 3, states "At what time William Stickney married, the surname of his wife, where he resided in England, and the date of the births or baptisms of his children, the name of the ship in which he embarked, as tradition says, at Hull, or the time of his arrival in Boston, New England, have not been ascertained."

The answers to some of these questions have now been determined from research by the author in the parish register of Cottingham, Yorkshire, a parish four and one-half miles northwest of Hull. There is found the marriage of William Stickney with the baptisms of his children as follows:

William Stickney married 29 Nov. 1628 Elizabeth Dawson.

Children: i. John, bp. 30 Aug. 1629
✓ ii. Samuel, bp. 6 March 1630/1.
iii. Daniel, bap. 7 Oct. 1632; bur. 9 Oct. 1632.
✓ iv. Mary, bp. 28 Dec. 1633.
v. Amos, bp. 6 March 1635/6; bur. 12. Jan. 1637/8.
✓ vi. Amos, bp. 11 Feb. 1637/8.

These clearly are the children Samuel, Amos, and Mary who came with their parents, as well as other children who died. The baptism of Amos 11 Feb. 1637/8 makes clear that the Stickneys came to Boston in 1638, not 1637 as suggested by James Savage in "A Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England (Boston, 1862-65). However, the ring of truth is given to the tradition of embarking at Hull as it was so close.

The only Stickney family in the Cottingham register is that of William Stickney, and the entries cover just the ten year period from 1628 to 1638, and it is evident that he came from some other place. Elizabeth Dawson's ancestry, however, can be traced back to the beginning of the parish register in 1563.

WILLIAM STICKNEY'S WILL.

(The original is still preserved (folded and filed) in the Essex Probate Office at Salem.)

"I William Stickney, of Rowley in the county of Essex in New England, being weake of body, but of perfect understanding and memory, do make and ordaine this my last will and testament.

I will and give unto my well beloved wife Elizabeth Stickney the benefit of my dwelling house, out houses, barne, orchard, land and meadowes that are or lie within the five mille bounds of the towne of Rowley with all the privileges belonging unto those lands, as also the meadow in Ipswich west meadowes, as also one third part of the househould stufe which she shall chuse for convenient and necessary use, as also two cowes; and all this I give her during her natural life.

As for my son Samuell Stickney, I having bene at certain cost toward his settling, therefor I will and give unto him but ten pounds more out of my estate, and that to be his full portion, and I will him to be satisfied therewith.

As for my son Amos Stickney, he having at noe time bene beneficiall to my estate, and I having procured him a trade and given him some part ye estate toward his settling, I therefore will and give unto him but five pounds more out of my estate, and that to be his full portion; and I will him to be satisfied therewith.

As for my other sixe childeren, John, Andrew, Thomas, Mary, Faith and Mercy, I will that they have the rest of my estate equally among them, as followeth:--I will and give my sone John Stickney the inheritance of the lands and meadowes and houses that I have given unto my wife during her natural life, to be his possession; providing that he pay out of it, it being a greater part than there wilbe for any of the rest, soe much of it as will make the portions of the rest equall with his portion; and I will that he selle and improve this land as his owne, paying unto his mother yearly during her life three pounds ten shillings and carefully winter her two cowes yearly, and she to injoy one of the roomes for her owne particular use during her life.

Unto my son Andrew Stickney I will and give him for his inheritance of my lands my land at Merrimacke; and if, in its vallueation it amounteth to more than his equall share with the rest of his brothers and sisters when my estate is divided, then I will that he pay some thing backe to equallize them; and if it be vallued at lese than his equall part, then it to be made up unto him.

Unto my son Thomas Stickney I will and give my village land for his inheritance of my lands; and, if in its valluation it amounteth to more than his equall share with the rest of his brothers and sisters, then he to pay backe soe much as will equallize his portion with the rest; and if it be vallued at lese then it to be made up unto him, soe as they be equall.

As for my three daughters, I will, that they have their portions out of my estate in moveables, or if they fall short to be made up out of the overpluse of their three brothers' lands, so as that they may be made all equall allike, and that they have their portions payed unto them as they come of age or at marriage.

I will and appoint my well beloved wife my solle excequtorix of this my will.

And I desire my trusty friends Maxemillion Jewett and Samuell Brocklebanke to be my overseers;--and this my last will I signe with my owne hand this 21 of January, 1664.

Freeman 1640 videus?

William brought w/him a quarto copy of King James' trans. of the Bible, 1st ed., printed 1611; this Bible was used at the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the settlement of Rowley. It was then owned by Dea. Nathaniel Stickney of Dracut, Mass. William was admitted Freeman 7 Oct. 1640; a selectman in 1656 & 1661 (1652, 57, 60, 62); styled Lieutenant in 1661. His wife survived him by several years, but the date of her death is not known.

The parish register of the St. Mary's Church in Frampton, Lincolnshire, England, contains many records of baptisms, marriages & burials of Stickneys from 1558 to 1609. The name does not appear on these records after this date. Tradition and information obtained from England render it probable that the family moved to Hull, or its vicinity.

A husbandman & yeoman; bought land in 1699 on the sides & summit of Long Hill & built a log house. In 1700 he built a good frame house on the westerly end of this Hill; the house faced south, two stories in front with a lean-to on the rear. This house was still standing in 1869. He and wife admitted as members of First Church in Rowley, 2 Sept. 1701, but his ch. were baptized at Byfield where he usually attended meeting, it being nearer his home. As remembered by his grch., "he was a stout healthy man; never experienced sickness until he was abt. 80 yrs. old; he was a man of great courage and unbounded generosity, sincere and unaffected in his manner, even to bluntness. A bear took a pig from his pen in the night; he chased him with a whip-pole and rescued it. In the time of the great snow, Feb. 1717, he kept a path open by drawing a log every day. He had no near neighbor within half a mile before his fourth son settled at the foot of the hill. He was of a middling complexion, dark hair, and blue eyes. His wife, Mary [Palmer], was a person of real piety and worth; she never enjoyed good health, and had the palsy for a number of years before she died." Their gr.-gr.-grandson, Matthew Adams^7 Stickney, had 2 elaborately carved oaken chests marked with her initials before marriage, M.P., which, from their superior workmanship, may have been brought from England.

Dear Miriam,

Thanks for you card re Sweet. I had one letter from a woman saying John Sweet^2 married Elizabeth Jeffrey, but she gave no reference + this is what I want. She did give Elizabeth's father as Robert and had a reference for that. I'll check that bit out and be "ready" in case I find something to convince me of the Jeffrey connection.

As for John^1 Sweet + Mary — your card was the only response. I'll be glad to keep you informed of any valuable data my peckings may turn up.

Wing Family Reunion is now

over and I'm looking forward to doing my own "thing" for a couple of weeks. Reunion was larger than usual — over 100 — and I think there was also more enthusiasm than usual. There was plenty of work, that's for sure!

Have a good summer.

Sincerely,

Dear Ruth, -- Or should I say ...
Dear Cousin ... Anyway, today I received the June NUTMEGGER, and there was your query re Mary, the wife of JOHN SWEET. And I had just sent a letter off to someone else on the same subject! The Sweets are truly chaotic, and you may receive LOTS of answers. Like ... Mary Periam. Or Mary Westcott. Or maybe many others. To the best of my knowledge, this is still one of the "unsolved mysteries" in the never ending genealogical puzzle. -- But, I'm a SWEET (hadn't you noticed?), and I'll certainly be interested in any replies you may receive! -- Do you plan to be at the June meeting of C.C.G.S.? I HOPE to be there, but never know. -- Just this past Thursday, I purchased Richard Lovell's "The Cape Cod of Thornton W. Burgess." LOVE it! -- Beautiful weather these past few days! I've not driven may car since Thursday ... have ridden a bicycle to the P.O. twice a day ... for mail, etc. "Almost" swimming weather.

Part I - Hist. of Great Barrington (Berkshire), Mass., 1676-1882
Part II - Extension, 1881-1922.

The Meeting House built 1742-45 — pews sold 9 Apr. 1746 — parish records show:—
To Luke Noble & Samuel Suydam, the third pew from the pulpit, north of the west door £40, Old Tenor.

AEPH "On an old map, Sheffield, Mass., used to come up about 1/3 way into what is now Great Barrington (until 1761) — also Livingston Manor line apparently came halfway into Egremont, which is next west of Great Barrington."

Joshua White & Samuel & Lawrence Suydam were among the earliest settlers, So. of the bridge over Green River, most of whom settled between 1726 & 1730. It would have been Sheffield in those days.

A Derrik Hogaboom was among the early settlers above the bridge — gone before 1735.

SWIFT

The name of Swift, Swiftbyrn, Swyft, Swyfte, Swifte, Swift appears in the early annals of England.

Sir Francis Palgrave gives the name in his rolls of Norfolk and adjoining counties as early as the year 1166.

Burke's Landed Gentry says that the ancestor of the family was of Belgian origin and came to England about the fourteenth century, and that from the difficulty of pronouncing the name D'Suive it was changed through the forms Swyve, Swif, Swyfte, till it reached Swift.

Bardsley's Dictionary of English and Welsh names suggests that they originated in the effort to describe personal characteristics or occupations. It gives other names having the same meaning as Swift, as [illegible], [illegible], Lightfoot, Golightly, Bullet, etc. From all of this it becomes quite evident that family names were derived in various ways of which the above are examples of a particular phase.

The branch of the name at [illegible] and [illegible] in Yorkshire, traces back to Bryan Swift who lived in 1537, at which time Burke says they were settled in [illegible].

From a letter to Charles F. Swift, Esq. [illegible] of [illegible], [illegible], England and [illegible] of May 12, 1874 and signed by [illegible], [illegible] of Tooting:

xxxxxThere is a melancholy tradition of a person named Swift who committed suicide and was (in accordance with the barbarous custom of the time) buried under [illegible] road and with a stake through his heart. They say the place is yet called "Swift's Corner". xxxxx The second book of Registers of the Church of St. Mary, Tooting, lists "Mary, daughter of James Swift, baptized August 3, 1671" and "A daughter of Tho. Swift, buried [illegible] Dec. 1671". xxxxx In a book of records of the parish there is named a Thomas Swift and a James Swift. xxxxx And in the registers these two entries: "James Swift: buried June 7, 1713" and "James Swift: buried October [illegible], 1713". xxxxx

Family motto: Festina lente.

Dear Mrs. Brady

In reference to your call here August 5, about the line Joan (Sisson) Swift appearing on page 553 of the index of "Sandwich A Cape Cod Town", I have consulted the Bocking Essex Parish register at New England Historic Genealogical Society. This is LDS microfiche A 0543 for Essex as of July 1984. I was told in writing by a correspondent Mrs Mary Swancy that this microfiche read William Swift m 1618 Joan Sisson Bocking Essex but to my dismay and disappointment the word Sisson is not there. I checked with Ruth Sisson the Wing Family genealogist here, and she confirmed that she has never seen proof that Joan was a Sisson. Hence I made a major error in writing Sisson before I checked properly. Thanks for catching this error, and I will take it out when the book is reprinted.

Yours truly
RALovell Jr

He was in Watertown, Mass. in 1634, and had been there some time; removed to Sudbury but sold his property there in 1637 and moved to Sandwich. The farm which he bought in Sandwich was the largest in town and in 1887 was owned by his lineal descendant Shadrach Freeman Swift, Esq. "Although William bought the largest farm in Sandwich, he died heavily in debt, too soon perhaps to establish himself firmly. In Jan. 1643, the inventory of his estate was shown at court, amounting to £72.11s. 1d. - a house & land at Sudbury, mortgaged to secure debt of £20.10s. Debts, including funeral charges - £245.15s.18d. Inventory shows £72. 17s. 00d. for "goods and cattels." £10. 00s. 00d. for "house & meadow land."

He served in Lt. John Blackmer's Company, D before Jan. 1643. "Jone Swift" was fined at Plymouth Court, Oct. 1660, "for being att Quakers meetings." (Plymouth Colony Records - Vol. 8 - 1857)

"Nobe" Swift Of Sandwich–He Made Gustavus Famous

Most renowned scion of the famous Swift family of West Sandwich was Gustavus Swift, founder of the great Chicago packing company of that name.

But an older brother of Gustavus, Nobe Parker Swift, widely known as "Nobe," was perhaps more of a personality, and by very old Cape Codders is remembered as such to this day.

It was Nobe Swift who–so they say–drove Gustavus off the Cape to seek his fortune. Nobe peddled meat from a cart. Nobe was so shrewd and so industrious that nobody, even such an organizer as Gustavus, could compete for trade with him on his own stamping ground. Tired of Nobe's competition, Gustavus fled the Cape, and found Chicago a comparative cinch.

Nobe also dealt in cordwood and built cranberry bogs, along what is now the south bank of the Canal just to the right of the Sagamore bridge. He also specialized in raising hogs. It is said that just before selling off his hogs he would feed them salted bran, then bloat them to outlandish size by having them slake their raging thirst at the Sandwich Town Brook.

Nobe hated to spend money on his home, and lived in what some folks deemed squalor. In dress, however, Nobe had a keen interest. Every now and then he blossomed out as a dandy.

Naturally, Nobe liked to dance, and he also had an eye for the ladies. For certain peccadilloes he was dropped from the Methodist Church. This got Nobe's dander up.

To get even he had a large, spired henhouse built, an exact replica of the nearby meeting house, and much finer than his own dwelling. On Sundays, he would let out his guinea hens and cockerels, so that their chattering and crowing might drown out the sermon.

Reuben's lot – In 1744 bought his "home lot" lot 6 – in the First Division from Abel Wright, an original Proprietor.
In today's terms it would lie on the East side of the Crest of Cobble Mountain halfway between Flanders & Rt. 341.

At that time the main road (Twelve Rod Highway) ran from the Cornwall line across the top of Cobble Mt., across Spooner Hill to Bull's Bridge.
No town road in front of Reuben's "home" lot & his neighbors as they were set a good many feet back from the highway. Access must have been from cart tracks or a communal lane running to the south joining a road that went west to the Grate Plain and the river, crossing the Twelve Rod Highway. In 1771 he added a considerable tract of land inherited from Jabez by Jabez's son [illegible]. this lay west [of] abandoned road that runs from Rt 341 up to Geer Mountain.
This road was known as the "20 Rod Highway to the Iron Pots," (the Ore Bed).
Land W. ~~of~~ to the Plain was also purchased so that sev. 100 acres were "joined" in this ~~lo~~cation, all of it adjacent to Jabez' property.
